Joint Master in Global Economic Governance and Public Affairs

The Joint Master in Global Economic Governance and Public Affairs (GEGPA) is offered in partnership between the Luiss School of Government and the Centre International de Formation Européenne (CIFE).

The program focuses on assessing, managing, and improving the governance of private and public institutions through a wide range of economic and digital intelligence tools.

This one-year program takes place across Rome, Berlin, and Nice, and is taught in English by renowned scholars and experienced professionals who combine academic excellence with practical expertise.

It features a combination of on-site teaching, case studies, consulting projects, and a final research thesis.

OBJECTIVES

At the end of the program, all participants will achieve the following:

Digital and Sustainable Economy-Oriented Curriculum

Experience the dynamics of the digital economy in an interconnected global environment and develop the analytical skills needed to govern economic institutions that promote individual opportunity, social cohesion, and environmental sustainability.

Applied Research Expertise

Enhance your ability to master governance for sustainable economic development through a hands-on Master's thesis, supervised by CIFE and Luiss experts alongside experienced policy leaders.

Global Alumni and Networking Community

Join the extensive CIFE and Luiss networks of policymakers and diplomats, gaining access to exclusive project opportunities within European and international institutions.
