

Master in European Studies: EU Institutions and Public Policy

Luiss
School of Government

Introduction

The Master in European Studies: EU Institutions and Public Policy (MES) is a one-year program aimed at training future experts in European Union affairs, EU institutions and international organizations. This highly professionalizing full-time program provides students with broad yet specific proficiencies in the working procedures of European institutions and in policy areas linked with the EU, such as Migration, Security, Euro-Zone Politics and the Common Market. Combining theoretical and practical approaches, the program enables students to understand the political, economic and cultural dynamics among the EU actors, as well as between the EU and external actors, while getting an excellent preparation for a career with institutions, organizations and private employers.

Objectives

The course prepares future professionals for careers in:

- Policy analysis
- European institutions and international organizations
- Private companies acting on the international stage

Participants

MES is a first-level master's program. Applicants are required to hold at least a three-year bachelor's degree in Political Science, Economics, Law, Humanities, Philosophy or neighboring disciplines, including languages. For all other fields, the selection board reserves the right to an individual examination of the candidate's suitability for the program. Classes are small, with a maximum of 25 students, allowing for interactive teaching and individual supervision of each student.

Career Opportunities

Graduates of the program can apply for jobs in European and international institutions such as the EU Commission, the EU Parliament or the ECB, the United Nations with its numerous sub-organizations worldwide, NGOs, and companies that operate internationally. The Luiss Career Service offers specialized training for successful job applications and provides individual contacts in order to apply for internships. An EPSO training course prepares candidates for the highly competitive selection process to European institutions.

Program Description

ECTS: 60

The Master in European Studies consists of:

- Four core courses
- Six elective courses
- Training and simulation exercises
- Final master's thesis

Core courses:

- European Politics after 1945
- Reforming European Institutions and Democracy
- European Macroeconomics
- Policies and Policymaking in the EU

Specialized Training

The program gives students the opportunity to attend technical courses to successfully access and operate within European institutions.

This includes training in academic methodology and communication in order to prepare students for research, writing and public transmission techniques. Students may also choose between two-day preparatory courses such as EPSO, a specialized training in Learning Policy Advice or EU Programming, focused on the managing projects funded by the EU.
